

RIDERS RECOMMEND

Del Rio is a colorful, culturally rich city with the San Felipe Springs creating an oasis through the middle of town. It's also warm when the rest of the state is cold, so make a note-to-self that Del Rio is a good winter ride destination.

WALNUT CANYON GUEST CABINS

12 miles south of Fredericksburg on Old San Antonio Rd
(830) 456-9326

I'd like to keep this place a secret, but it really deserves to be in your magazine. I hope you publish this, as it is the best bike getaway I have ever found, bar none. My girlfriend and I just spent another wonderful weekend in one of David Mesch's cabins located between Fredericksburg and Comfort, Texas. David offers a quiet, secluded atmosphere with an incredible view right out the back door. The cabins are newly constructed, nicely appointed with everything a couple would need for a weekend getaway, right down to farm fresh eggs and cream in the refrigerator. Alamo Café is just a short drive down the road, offering incredible lunch and evening meals. And, Luckenbach is just a few miles further. This is a biking couple's dream.

T&T CYCLES

5800 E US 90, Del Rio
(830) 298-1181

On a recent trip to Big Bend, our group spent one night in Del Rio. As we were preparing to leave the next morning, one of the riders' bikes, an '07 Harley, began making a tapping noise. The local phone book listed T&T Cycles that advertised that they serviced Harleys. We got there about 9:20am. When the mechanic came out to listen to the bike, he asked if we were going to be in town for a day or two. We told him that we were supposed to leave that morning, and he said that he would take it in right away. The noise seemed to be coming from the primary, and he got right to it. After about an hour and a few adjustments, we were on our way with a repair bill that was surprisingly low. You'd be hard pressed to get the same service for that price in the DFW area. T&T repairing it right then and there allowed us to continue on our trip. The very helpful folks at T&T exhibited the level of customer service that seems to be so lacking these days. I would recommend them to anyone who's passing through the area and is in need of service.
